Soul Train
at
This Old Horse!

A close-up, slightly desaturated photograph of a horse's head. The horse has dark, speckled fur and a white blaze on its forehead. It is wearing a brown, textured halter with a yellow plastic buckle. The horse's eye is visible, looking directly at the camera. The background is blurred, showing what appears to be a fence or stable structure.

I am seen.

I am loved.

I am valued and cherished.

Not ridden

is not worthless.

BUILDING SKILLS AND RELATIONSHIPS

Soul Train sessions are focused on using applied behavioral analysis principles to build skills and relationships between horse adopters and their horse.

Teams will meet with a professional trainer twice a month for 3 months where they will each develop and implement an individual program plan to build a skill or change a behavior of their horse.

A close-up, black and white photograph of a horse's head, focusing on the eye and mane area. The horse's eye is partially visible on the right side of the frame. The mane is dark and textured, running vertically down the center of the image. A black rectangular box is overlaid on the upper part of the image, containing the text 'LEARN AND PRACTICE' in yellow. Below this, a white rectangular box contains two paragraphs of black text.

LEARN AND PRACTICE

The sessions will demonstrate principles and techniques and offer individualized guidance and direction for the teams.

Team members will work with the trainer, practicing and doing return demonstrations of the skills.

COMMITMENT TO PRACTICE

The teams will commit to conducting and documenting three training sessions per week and demonstrating their progress at the group meetings. Teams are encouraged to take and upload photos and video.

A PATH FORWARD

The objective is to offer adopters a path to help understand how their horse develops new skills and behaviors as a way to establish a fun, safe and rewarding experience with their new horse.

SHARED SUCCESS

It also creates a welcoming community to share success and experiences with their fellow horse owners.

A close-up, artistic photograph of a horse's mane. The mane is dark, possibly black or dark bay, and is shown in a way that highlights the texture of the individual hairs. Some strands are caught in the light, creating a soft, golden-brown glow. The background is blurred, focusing attention on the hair's texture.

BEHAVIOR IS PURPOSEFUL

Horses are not 'naughty' or 'mad'
(although you might be).

Their behavior is motivated by either getting something they want OR avoiding something they don't want.

PAY ATTENTION TO THE CIRCUMSTANCES

It is as important to notice when an undesirable behavior IS NOT happening as it is to notice the times it IS happening.

YOU GET WHAT YOU REWARD

You will get the behavior that you reward,
not the behavior that you want.

LEARNING THEORY BASICS

Reinforcement increases the probability of the behavior that it follows.

Positive reinforcement rewards a behavior by addition (+).

You add a reinforcer (example, a treat).

LEARNING THEORY BASICS

Reinforcement increases the probability of the behavior that it follows.

Negative reinforcement rewards a behavior by subtraction (-).

You remove an aversive stimulus (pressure).

A close-up photograph of a horse's tail, showing the texture of the hair. A dark, semi-transparent rectangular box is overlaid on the upper portion of the image, containing text in a light blue color. Below this box, another white rectangular box contains text in black and brown colors.

NEGATIVE REINFORCEMENT IS NOT PUNISHMENT

Punishment applies an aversive stimuli in order to decrease a behavior (ex. whipping, hitting, popping).

It is hard for a horse to identify the behavior being punished.

PRESSURE MEANS CHANGE

Under saddle or on the ground, pressure means change.

Ex: Pressure to move forward. Pressure to stop moving.

When your feet are moving, the horse's feet are moving. When your feet stop, their's stop.

RELEASE OF PRESSURE IS REWARD

Immediate release of physical or psychological pressure rewards the behavior.

Timing of the release of pressure is critical. The closer the release is to the desired behavior the faster the horse will learn.

RELEASE, RELAX, REWARD

Keep repeating.

Release, relax, reward.

Release, relax, reward.

Release, relax, reward.

THIS ALSO BEARS REPEATING

Immediate release of physical or psychological pressure rewards the behavior.

Timing of the release of pressure is critical. The closer the release is to the desired behavior the faster the horse will learn.

STEREOTYPIES ARE NOT LEARNED

Cribbing, stall weaving, wood chewing, wind sucking are not learned behaviors.

They are self-soothing or quieting reflexes that release endorphins and calm the horse.

MANAGE THE SITUATION, NOT THE BEHAVIOR

The best way to manage stereotypes is to manage the environment and figure out the situations where they are more or less likely to occur.

When doesn't it happen?

LEARN BY DOING

You will not learn to train your horse by watching videos or buying training aids.

You and the horse will learn by working together and communicating effectively.

DEVELOP YOUR PLAN

Choose a specific, measurable and observable objective.

Complete the planning worksheet at this link:
www.thisoldhorse.com/ soul-train

SCHEDULE YOUR SESSIONS

Decide who and when will conduct the weekly training sessions.

If this requires arena time, sign up on the online arena calendar or with your coordinator.

RECORD YOUR PROGRESS

Progress reports are reviewed by the trainer and coordinator. If you get stuck or wish to change your plan, contact your trainer for advice.

Progress notes are recorded at this link:
www.thisoldhorse.com/soul-train

SHARE YOUR SUCCESS

Teams will demonstrate their progress toward goal during the group sessions. Each team will review and demonstrate their progress with the whole group and work 1:1 with the trainer to refine and improve their process.

SOCIAL

This Old Horse sees many horses that, through no fault of their own, have experienced a lack of appropriate training and handling in their past lives.

Our primary mission is to provide horses with a safe harbor where they have the best possible care provided by compassionate, loving caretakers.

When a horse lacks basic 'good citizen' skills, it limits their capacity for positive interactions with people and opportunities that may be available to them for a happy life.

Each horse is capable of being a good citizen.
We can show the way.

Fill out an interest form.

If you do not have a team or horse in mind, the coordinator can help match you with an available horse or team.

You do not have to be an adopter or make a commitment to adopt to be in the program.

However, adopters will be given preference if availability is limited.

Soul Train Interest Inquiry

Please complete and submit this survey if you are interested in participating or find out more about participating in the Soul Train program at This Old Horse. Our coordinator will respond to you shortly! Thank you.

The Soul Train program is offered at no charge to those who have adopted or are considering adopting a horse through This Old Horse. It is designed for new or 'returning' horse owners who are looking for support and skills to build a strong and positive relationship with a horse.

Do you have a specific horse in mind?

Put horse's name here or leave blank if you would like us to match you up. This can be a horse you have or intend to adopt OR another horse that can help you build skills.

Soul Train is a 12-week program. Participants will be required to attend 6 trainer sessions (every other week) and to work independently in between sessions on

Welcome

Here is a worksheet to help the team strategize and refine the specific objectives for the Soul Train experience. There are 13 questions that should be discussed and completed by the group. Remember that all behavior is purposeful. It either helps the horse get something desirable or helps it avoid something undesirable. Keep this in mind while you strategize.
